Filial Love.

Do you love your parents? Now a better question might be "what is filial love?" So, let's work on answering that question. The direct definition of "filial love" is simply the love of a child for a parent. When you were born into this world you had so much love to give but as time goes by it seems as if we become more and more ashamed of displaying that love. Perhaps that's simply because we are desperately trying to become independent that we forget to love. For instance, how many of you do the simple act of telling your parents how much they mean to you. Now as easy as this sounds I myself seem to have trouble doing so. Loving your parents is natural and should never be something to feel ashamed about. I urge you not only to embrace this precept but to also Earnestly strive to show the love you feel in your heart.
